Information About Elements:

Jumeirah Village South is a community designed to embody a vision of peace, harmony, health, and happiness. The radial layout allows neighbourhoods and open spaces to occur in a vibrant, more natural and buzzing manner and embraces the symmetrical component of Islamic art. This design celebrates the importance of lush vegetation and water amongst the arid desert landscape, creating a stimulating community. Many of the public amenities found in Jumeirah Village South include parks, sports fields, international schools, mosques, and more. These are strategically clustered in the green spaces to create accessible gathering places, reminiscent of the important historic oasis. Some 2,500 years ago, the Greek philosopher Aristotle postulated that all matter is comprised of five basic elements: earth, water, air, fire and spirit. Each of these creative elements are necessary for human life, they each have both positive and negative aspects . The Earth without Water to moisten it, without Fire to warm it, and without Wind to surround it, would be a lifeless planet; and Spirit, keeping the four sisters in harmony.
